Frock Keeps Matron Looking "Just Right"

PATTERN 2335

Looking just right about the home and neatly tailored enough for afternoon or porch appearance, is no trick at all for the handy woman who knows how to run up a seam! The clever matron likes the extra formality the flattering revers lend the bias frock. The pleated sleeve—besides being flattering—allows for plenty of action and the paneled skirt with roomy pockets has a way with it if the hips are just a bit too generous! A neat pin-stripe cotton or tailored geometric design would be excellent. An eyelet batiste makes a lovely street dress.

Pattern 2335 is available in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 36 takes 4¼ yards 39-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address, and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address all orders to the Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

Mislaid

"What became of the boss who used to lay down the law?"

"He overworked," said Senator Sorghum. "He laid down here so promiscuously that a state of confusion resulted. We've got to organize search parties to find any laws at all."

To His Memory

"George Washington must have had a wonderful memory, dad."

"What makes you think so?"

"Well, they built so many monuments to it."

SKY RIDE tower, last landmark of World's Fair, is brought DOWN

Nearly 40,000,000 persons paid to see A Century of Progress exposition in Chicago during the summers of 1933 and 1934, and one of the supreme thrills of the whole World's fair for them was the towering Sky Ride.

The two great steel towers, christened Amos and Andy, after the radio comedians, were the principal landmarks of the fair, their 628-foot height —greater than any building in the United States outside of New York—making them visible for many miles.

When wreckers felled Andy, the east tower, a vast throng of 200,000 Chicagoans gathered on the lake shore to watch the last familiar mark of what was once their beloved exposition fall.

Thermit, a chemical which attains a heat of 5,000 degrees Fahrenheit in 30 seconds, was used to melt the steel of Andy's legs on one side; then the pressure of cables caused the metal giant to fall earthward. Amos, the other tower, had had his legs dynamited from under him some weeks before. The operation that time was conducted at dawn in great secrecy so that no one would be hurt. When it was found that the flying steel fell within 10 feet of limits estimated by engineers, a grand-stand was built and the public was invited to watch Andy's execution.

EXPERT OFFERS TIPS ON SAUCES

What They Are and How to Make Them Explained by Leading Expert.

The word sauce has, in culinary matters, divers meanings. It may be fruit cooked with sugar, until it is of the consistency of a white sauce, or it may have the pieces of the fruit, or whole berries, unbroken in a rich liquid of delectable flavor. It may be a mellow, smooth, thin paste highly seasoned and variously colored, a rich sauce for meat or fish or fowl. Or it may be a sweet creamy liquid for puddings and desserts.

The time for discrimination in the significance of the word has come, however. Some sauces are in reality, compotes. This is when the berries or cut fruits remain unbroken, or as nearly so as the kind permits. For example applesauce is not a sauce but a compote when pieces are unbroken. It is a much more epicurean dish among cooked fruits, than the sauce, which is of strained fruit, and is used much as is a relish. Applesauce is a side dish for pork, and other meats. A compote of apples may be so served, but it may be served for a dessert with cake or rich cookies. Each has its place and is a favorite dish.

Many of the dishes once termed sauces have evolved into relishes, for example, spiced fruits are accounted relishes today, while mashed ripe fruits, or slightly cooked and lavishly sweetened fruits become sauces well liked for ice creams and other desserts. It is the sweet sauce that is featured for desserts. The sauce with zest is for meat or fish, entrees of like kind, and for poultry and birds, etc.

For the group of sauces with zest there is one foundation, a roux which may be white or brown according to whether the flour has been browned in the butter or not. A rich roux has equal parts butter and flour, which is thinned with stock, or with milk. The French chefs use stock, and scorn a sauce of this kind that is otherwise made creamy. Water can be used for thinning a foundation of one tablespoonful of butter and one of flour—or two of flour, but such a sauce is scarcely worthy the name, it is so inferior. Roux of either kind is a basic sauce, from which many others can be made.

Another group of sauces with zest have nothing in common with the roux group. Mint, sauce for mutton and lamb is one. This has vinegar and mint as principal ingredients with sugar to mellow it. Then there are various kinds with mayonnaise, as a base, or the mayonnaise itself, a very rich sauce for salads, meats, and fish. Tartar sauce chiefly for fish has mayonnaise for a foundation, with other ingredients added, such as a little onion, parsley, olives, capers, and pickles all minced. There are endless kinds of salad sauces with mayonnaise as the base such as Russian dressing, Creole sauce, Thousand Island dressing. Or a boiled dressing may be substituted for the olive oil mayonnaise.
